ABSTRACT

One hundred and eighty-eight selected special libraries were surveyed in an initial attempt to study the resources and major subject holdings available in U.S. Federal libraries maintaining extensive or unique collections of research materials. The objectives were twofold: (1) to determine the nature and availability of the various collections, and (2) to provide access to subject coverage through both aphabetical listing and a class arrangement. Computer prepared tables which identify the libraries involved and which interpret and compare in hierarchial arrangement the data obtained in a systematic fashion are presented. An alphabetical list of the subjects reported by and available in libraries studied is also provided. The subject coverage was widespread; however, there is a noticeable concentration in history and the pure sciences. Religion was represented the least. The definitions of Exhaustive and Research collections used in the study were insufficient to enable librarians to do more than report the status of their collections based on their own evaluation and interpretation. A study or critique on the feasibility of developing criteria for evaluating research collections is mandatory. Another edition of resources of Federal libraries could then incorporate additions, omissions and correction, and most important, report the status of collections in a more meaningful manner. PREFACE

The sponsor of this study on Federal Library resources is the Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources which was established by the Federal Library Committee in May 1965. Its members, past and present and the Federal organizations which they represent are: Robert Butler (preceded by Bella Shachtman)–National Agricultural Library; John Charles Finzi–Library of Congress; Elsa S. Freeman–Department of Housing and Urban Development; Mary Huffer–Smithsonian Institution; Stanley Smith (preceded by Louis Gerber)–National Library of Medicine; George Stansfield–National War College; and Elsie K. Yoder–Department of the Interior. The Central Intelligence Agency and the Department of Defense were, at one time, represented by James G. Chandler and Logan Cowgill, respectively, but these agencies now have no active participants. Frank Kurt Cylke, Executive Secretary of the Federal Library Committee, who recently succeeded Paul Howard, following his retirement from government service, is an ex-officio member.

The purpose of this Task Force is to review and report upon acquisition and retention policies of Federal libraries, to evaluate holdings which may be appropriate for inclusion in a correlated program, to investigate and report upon problems related to the correlation of Federal library collections with other information activities, and to recommend programs and methods of correlating research collections of Federal libraries with other resources both within and without the Federal establishment.

Following several feasibility studies which were valuable, chiefly, because of the experience derived relative to workable methodology, the Task Force concluded that the time was auspicious for undertaking a detailed study of subject resources in Federal libraries maintaining extensive or unique collections of research materials. Such information is needed to advance the Task Force's mission.

This report is the result of the undertaking. It is, in essence, a guide to the research resources of 188* Federal government libraries insofar as it was possible to obtain descriptive details regarding holdings identified as being of major significance. The term, "Resources," for the purpose of this study includes, in the broadest sense, not only the literature resources such as books, periodicals, and maps but, also, such resources as those found principally in the Library of Congress and the Library of the Smithsonian Institution. Resources of these libraries include such items as motion pictures, musical scores, recordings, prints, drawings, posters, manuscripts, diaries, account books, talking books, oral histories, and photographs.

It should be noted that this is the first effort of its kind and that the present edition is only a preliminary one, subject to change in both content and format. The Task Force is keenly aware of the study's many imperfections. Criticism will be welcomed and will be of the greatest assistance to the compilers in preparing a second edition.

lation of Federal Library Resources

*The following changes have occurred since processing of the original questionnaires and preparation of the computer tables: Helium Research Center; Hibernation Information Exchange; Navy Area Public Works Office, Chesapeake Technical Reference Center; and the Naval Radiological Defense Laboratory have been disestablished. The Maritime Commission has combined with the Department of Commerce and the Federal Aviation Agency has combined with the Department of Transportation. All these libraries are included in the study, however, since it was not considered practicable to delete them.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Funds for the Federal Library Resources Study were provided by the Library and Information Sciences Research Program (Higher Education Act, Title IIb). This report is the product of the study performed with the coordinated effort of the Executive Secretary of the Federal Library Committee who guided the project from beginning to end; the Federal Library Committee's Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources whose members conceived the plan for the study; the Federal librarians who gave generously of their time in submitting desired facts concerning the libraries for which they are responsible; the project staff comprised of individuals who labored unstintingly to review, sift, and correlate the information supplied in response to the questionnaires which were distributed to almost six hundred locations, to prepare the topical index to the subject resources, and to design the machine system for analysis and interpretation of the data; and the author of the final report whose job was simplified due to the sustained interest and support of the others.

As the libraries of the Department of Defense comprise a large part of the total, the fact that the questionnaire used in the study was approved by the Office of Technical Information, ODDR&E for circulation to DOD libraries is of special significance.

SUMMARY

This report, covering 188* selected special libraries, represents an initial attempt to study the resources and major subject holdings available in U.S. Federal libraries maintaining extensive or unique collections of research materials. The objectives have been twofold: 1) to determine the nature and availability of the various collections; and 2) to provide access to subject coverage through both alphabetical listing and a class arrangement.

Objectives have been fulfilled through presentation of computer prepared tables which identify the libraries involved and which interpret and compare in hierarchial arrangement the data obtained in a systematic fashion. Also provided is a list, in alphabetical order, of the subjects reported by and available in the libraries studied.

Data were obtained by means of a 15-item questionnaire distributed to 578 Federal libraries together with an explanatory letter and instructions and definitions. Criteria developed in cooperation with the Federal Library Committee's Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources when applied to the returns, and also taking into account the number of non-returns, reduced the final total selected for analysis to 188.

As was to be expected the subject coverage is widespread, but there is a noticeable concentration in two areas – History and the Pure Sciences. The subject having the least representation is Religion.

While the evidence of few E (Exhaustive) collections was anticipated, the reporting of such a large number of Rs (Research) collections was surprising, and, in some instances, incurs the question of validity. Subsequent checking of holdings in similar subject areas reported by several libraries indicates a need for more definite standards of measurement for judging or defining research collections, both qualitatively and quantitatively. The definitions of Exhaustive and Research collections used in the study turned out to be insufficient in substance to enable librarians to do more than report the status of their collections based on their own evaluation and interpretation.

As a review of this report, by librarians, will undoubtedly bring forth criticisms and questions, which, indeed, it should, plans for a second edition could well be considered. Meanwhile a study or critique[5] on the feasibility of developing criteria for evaluating research collections is mandatory. Another edition of resources of Federal libraries could then incorporate additions, omissions and corrections, and most important of all, report the status of collections in a more meaningful manner.

INTRODUCTION

This study is the outgrowth of discussions held by the Federal Library Committee's Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources. The Task Force, one of several appointed by the Federal Library Committee which came into being in consequence of the Evans[1] study, has directed its attention to possible programs and methods which might provide the basis for recommending a correlated program for the acquisition and retention of research materials adequate for the Government's needs and its national responsibilities and to insure, as a consequence, that no subject area of interest to the Government or the Nation should remain, for lack of coordination, uncovered.

The Federal research libraries of the United States, collectively, constitute one of the great intellectual resources of our Nation, for, as will be noted from a perusal of the accompanying tables they present concentrations in specific subject fields with indication of some duplication, and they provide, in many instances, unusual collections of informational materials.

The number of libraries involved, the varied types of materials, and the different methods of organization as well as the different emphasis in their collections preclude the feasibility of standard methods of bibliographic control such as union catalogs. The development of an appropriate methodology for analysis, evaluation and reporting of results seemed to be an obvious requirement, taking precedence over any effort towards establishing a government-wide program for meaningful correlation of resources. After eliminating a number of unsatisfactory approaches, the decision was made to request an investigative report based on a method involving a library-by-library study, using a standardized classification and subject terminology and uniform criteria for determining collection levels in terms of research potential.

Accordingly, with the support of the Task Force and with funds from the Office of Education, a contract was arranged with the Biological Sciences Communication Project of the George Washington University Medical Center to undertake a study for the twelve month period, July 15, 1968 - June 15, 1969. The final date was later extended to June 19, 1970. The objectives were:

1. To determine, on a systematic, comparative basis, in relation to existing literature, the nature of the various collections in selected U.S. Federal libraries; the subjects, or portions of subjects included; the scope, the coverage; the types of materials; the availability to researchers; the permanence and currency of these collections; and the library services in the Federal Government that can contribute materially toward building an integrated network of resources.
2. To publish a final comprehensive report which will list the information obtained in a manner suitable for interpretation and evaluation and which will provide:
    a. A list in alphabetical order of subjects included in the libraries studied.
    b. A list of subjects arranged by the Dewey Decimal Classification together with identification by code of libraries having holdings in the subjects designated, and an indication of the depth, nature, and availability.

The principal categories of libraries with which the study is concerned are academic and special libraries, which for the purpose of the study are defined as reference and/or research libraries organized and administered by a separate department, independent agency, authority, commission, or component of the Executive, Judicial or Legislative Branch of the U.S. Government. Also included are the National libraries. All these libraries were identified through a listing maintained by the Executive Office of the Federal Library Committee, supplemented by listings found in the Schick report[2], A Directory of Information Resources in the United States: Federal Government[3], and Library and Reference Facilities in the Area of the District of Columbia[4]. Five hundred seventy eight locations recorded as having library facilities were approached. Due to various reasons, such as failure to respond, small size, disestablishment, or combining with other activities, 172 locations were dropped. Four hundred and six questionnaires were actually reviewed, many of those returned having been encouraged by follow-up letters with offers of assistance from the Project staff. Two hundred eighteen of these were rejected because the collections involved did not meet the prescribed qualifications; or, the data supplied was insufficient for comparison and analysis. The final number of questionnaires processed was 188*. Data for some of these was provided by the Project staff through visits to easily accessible libraries and consultations with administrative librarians or others.

The 188* libraries for which data was processed meet the requirements of the study, namely, that they have major subject holdings of comprehensive, research, or unique nature.

These study requirements were clearly aimed at a qualitative assessment of library holdings. Such a measurement is necessarily subjective and requires considerable knowledge of a collection together with criteria that can be uniformly applied by librarians at all locations. The criteria agreed upon with the sponsoring Federal Library Committee Task Force were highly restrictive, specifically limiting response data to collections that are distinguished either by their comprehensive depth or by unique holdings. Three definitions were constructed to reflect these constraints and to prevent the survey from being diluted with reports of minor holdings. The definitions which formed part of the instructions to libraries were:

Exhaustive: (E) An exhaustive or comprehensive collection, E, is one that deals with a subject for which the library discharges the responsibility of practical completeness and therefore endeavors to have everything written on the subject in all editions and languages but not necessarily in all translations or variant issues of the same edition. From this may also be excluded such minor items as promotional literature, reprints, or notices.

Research: (Rs) A research collection, Rs, is one that deals with a subject in which extensive investigation and research can be pursued. The collection is designed to serve the needs and support the resources of other Government agencies as well as the pursuit of advanced research by academic scholars and others. It includes all the basic reference tools and all important editions (as well as the latest and best) regardless of language. It also includes an ample selection of less important current works such as distinguish a research from a reference collection. Retrospective material is limited to works representing the most important editions, authors, or landmarks in the history of the subject.

Unique: (U) A unique collection, U, is one without like or equal. It may be distinguished for excellence; it may contain rare or only known copies; it need not necessarily be distinguished by size. Examples are: a collection of Civilian Conservation Corps newspapers; a collection of photographs of Indians; the Polar library of the late General A.W. Greely; miniature books.

Research materials are interpreted broadly to include monographs, serials, newspapers, maps, atlases, microfilms, motion pictures and all other types of library materials, whether in book or non-book form.

Criteria such as the following were applied to reporting libraries:

1. The collections should include a comprehensive, research or unique coverage of a subject or portion of a subject.
2. Acquisition and retention policies should be firmly established.
3. There should be adequate support to organize the collection and to provide services of research value.
4. The collection should be available for research.
5. All security classified materials are excluded from the study.

The following changes have occurred since processing of the original questionnaires and preparation of the computer tables: Helium Research Center; Hibernation Information Exchange; Navy Area Public Works Office, Chesapeake Technical Reference Center; and the Naval Radiological Defense Laboratory have been disestablished. The Maritime Commission has combined with the Department of Commerce and the Federal Aviation Agency has combined with the Department of Transportation. All these libraries are included in the study, however, since it was not considered practicable to delete them.

METHODOLOGY

The study sequence was divided into two distinct phases, Phase I being devoted to preparation, and Phase II being devoted to gathering of data, evaluation, interpretation and recording of the data in final form in conjunction with the designing of a system which would directly accept the data as input for conversion to machine-readable form.

Phase I. Preparation

The Questionnaire

Since authorization for this study provides for a library-by-library survey using a standard thesaurus and uniform criteria for determining collection levels in terms of research potential the basic first step was the formulation of a questionnaire to seek information descriptive of subject holdings and their availability.

Implicit in the planning were terms to describe degrees of scope and coverage; means to identify forms of materials and unique bibliographic tools, and means to describe degrees of availability to government agencies, scholars and the public. How to maintain simplicity and at the same time provide for inclusion of meaningful data presented a question requiring a satisfactory solution. Several versions of a questionnaire were prepared and the practicability of their use tested in libraries represented by members of the Federal Library Committee's Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources.

Ideas rejected were:

1. Inclusion on the questionnaire, ready for checking, of the class number and title of all Dewey Third Summary subjects. Use of this would have limited the subjects, permitting no indication of holdings such as guided missiles (623.4519) or cryogenic techniques (621.59).
2. Actual count of holdings by subject. While this record would be valuable for comparative purposes, it would be time consuming to acquire and probably be beyond the ability of most libraries in terms of staff time and personnel.
3. A breakdown of serials by number of bound volumes, number of journals currently received and number of newspapers. The effort to obtain this information was, also, considered to be too time consuming.

The final version (Appendix 1) provides for 15 different categories of information and is formatted in such a way that with the addition of identifying library codes explained in Table 1 it can be used directly as an input document for conversion to machine-readable material. Accompanying the questionnaire at time of distribution were an explanatory letter (Appendix 2) and a three-page list of Instructions and Definitions (Appendix 3), plus a copy of the Dewey Decimal Classification Third Summary (Appendix 4).

Recipients were asked to supply the following data:

1. Name of library
2. Location, name of librarian, date
3. Subjects, according to Dewey Decimal notations, words and phrases
4. Dates of coverage; e.g. publication dates of the earliest and latest titles (except for the three national libraries). It was agreed by all concerned that such information would not supply any useful indication of depth of subject coverage for collections as well established and comprehensive as the collections of the Library of Congress, the National Agricultural Library and the National Library of Medicine. (See Letter, Appendix 5).

5-9. Scope by type of material to be assessed by the symbols E (Exhaustive), Rs (Research), and U (Unique). (See p. 1 of Instructions and Definitions, Appendix 3 for the following):
(5) Monographs: (6) Documents and Reports; (7) Serials; (8) Maps; (9) Other.

10. Foreign titles (to be indicated by yes or no).[6]
11. General (assessment of the collection as a whole by the use of the symbols E (Exhaustive); Rs (Research); U (Unique)).[6]
12. Bibliographic aids and Card indexes maintained (to be indicated by a check mark).
13. Remarks (this space to be utilized for further explanation of information supplied in other columns).
14-15. Availability of collection (to be indicated by checking the following designations for degree of access to the collections):

RP-(Reference)	- open to the general public
RG-	- restricted to government employees only
RA-	- restricted to agency employees only
LP-(Loan)	- loan to general public
LG-	- loan to government employees, via interlibrary loan
LA-	- loan restricted to agency employees
LL-	- loan to non-government libraries

Although approximately five weeks were allotted for completion and return of the questionnaire, only 172 were received by the time of the announced deadline. Two follow-up letters (Appendix 6) mailed during succeeding months and active participation by Project Staff members in filling in some data resulted in the review of 406 questionnaires out of the total of 578 distributed. Forty-six did not reach their destination due to incorrect addresses or disestablishment of the activity. It was decided to disregard 126 and not send follow-up letters when no replies were received. These 126 were small libraries which probably would not qualify for the study under any circumstance. Out of the 406 reviewed, 218 were considered ineligible.

Phase II. Data Gathering, Evaluation, Interpretation and Recording

Data Gathering

Each returned questionnaire, as well as those prepared by members of the Project Staff were reviewed for

(1) indication of eligibility according to requirements specified
(2) completeness of questionnaire
(3) consistency
(4) legibility
(5) correct application of definitions and instructions
(6) appropriate data inserted in columns provided
(7) accuracy of Dewey Classification numbers as compared with subjects designated.

By application of such criteria the review of questionnaires resulted in reduction of the number eligible and suitable for processing, to 188*.

Table 2 provides an adjusted, computer-produced version of these questionnaires library-by-library. Adjustments in some instances were necessary for the sake of conformity. Whenever major changes were considered desirable or, whenever data supplied was not clear or relevant, librarians were contacted (see letters, Appendices 7 and 8) in order to achieve mutual agreement concerning revisions. Although completeness of information was a criterion for final selection some questionnaires with only minimal data were retained in the interest of providing as much information regarding Government research library collections as possible, and, also, because of the significance of the libraries and the collections involved.

[6] In the computerized Tables columns 10 and 11 were transposed. General becomes column 10 and Foreign Titles becomes column 11.

*The following changes have occurred since processing of the original questionnaires and preparation of the computer tables: Helium Research Center; Hibernation Information Exchange; Navy Area Public Works Office, Chesapeake Technical Reference Center; and the Naval Radiological Defense Laboratory have been disestablished. The Maritime Commission has combined with the Department of Commerce and the Federal Aviation Agency has combined with the Department of Transportation. All these libraries are included in the study, however, since it was not considered practicable to delete them.

It was inevitable that a review of the first column questionnaire data was more time consuming than any other, for the classification number was troublesome to many librarians. During the planning stages of the study there was indecision as to which scheme of classification should be designated for use. The choice had to be made between the Library of Congress and the Dewey Decimal classification systems. Both are known to be in use in Government libraries, one probably as much as the other. Because of the inherent simplicity of the Dewey as compared with the Library of Congress printed tools the former was selected. Reproduction of the Dewey Third Summary for distribution purposes was possible whereas reproduction of the very large Library of Congress schedules would have been impractical and unwieldy.

Those librarians who are accustomed to classifying in accordance with the Library of Congress classification schedules found transposing to unfamiliar Dewey classification numbers somewhat difficult. Furthermore, suitable classification numbers were not always available. A nine digit limitation on class numbers imposed by computerization of the data caused trouble also. Members of the Project staff, however, finally succeeded in devising acceptable designations.

Subjects inserted in the column marked (3) Title also created some questions and a need for interpretation. Because of the close relationship to the classification numbers the two were considered simultaneously. Explanatory statements inserted in the Remarks column by various librarians assisted greatly in the interpretation. Consistency in use of subject terms was of prime importance in this portion of the study.

Column (4) Dates was the one of the columns frequently not filled in. Lack of time and personnel was given as the excuse. Since access to library catalogs or accession records was necessary for obtaining information as to dates of coverage it was not possible for Project staff to assist in this phase of questionnaire data.

Scope by Type of Material was called for in columns (5) through (9). The degree of completeness for each form of material – monographs, documents and reports, serials, maps, and other – was to be assessed for each subject by use of the symbols E (Exhaustive); Rs (Research) and U (Unique). Responses are probably more subject to question than for any other part of the questionnaire because of the lack of standards for comparison.

Indication in column (10) of whether or not foreign language publications were a part of the collection was the easiest task confronting recipients of the questionnaire. Although many failed to supply the answer it was assumed that no information indicated no foreign language. Designation of the kind of language was to be included in the Remarks column.

The request in column (11) to assess the collection as a whole by the symbols E (Exhaustive); Rs (Research); and U (Unique) is closely related to columns (5) through (9), Scope by Type of Material. Unfortunately for completeness of the study analysis a number of librarians took advantage of the opportunity to insert a symbol here and left columns (5) through (9) blank.

More than enough information was supplied for column (12) Bibliographical Aids and Card Indexes Maintained. Many "one-shot" bibliographies were listed as well as minor lists of books. These were omitted since such items were not asked for.

The column, number 13, reserved for Remarks or Comments, proved to be a "catchall" but at the same time a benefit. Statements made therein helped to clarify information noted in the other columns. There was mention of so many special collections that it was deemed advisable to insert an extra column between numbers 12 and 13 and head it "Special Collections". The computer-produced versions of the completed questionnaires consequently includes this column.

Information in the last columns, items 14-15, regarding availability of collections, will probably be the most useful to the largest number of people. Fortunately, such information was supplied by the majority of respondents.

Evaluation and Interpretation

Whenever several libraries, each of a different size, reported holdings of Rs (Research) calibre in the same subject area the question of validity inevitably arose. In other words, is it practicable for a small collection, in comparison with a large collection, to be designated Rs? With the realization that no qualitative nor quantitative yardsticks of measurement had been included in the Instructions and Definitions (Appendix 3) the need for some means to factually determine the strength of collections was evident.

A case in point is the subject Anamnia (Cyclostomes, Fishes, Amphibians) class number 597. Ninety eight titles of books and periodicals selected, for the most part, from standard library tools[7] were listed and sent to selected libraries for checking against their holdings. Results were enlightening, but not conclusive. This subject was reported by four libraries, two of them of considerable size, one of small size, and one in between. Checking of the list sent to them turned out as follows:

Library Number	Collection Designation	No. of Titles Checked
No. 1 (large)	E	49
No. 2 (large)	Rs	82
No. 3 (medium)	Rs	no reply
No. 4 (small)	Rs	47

As will be noted, the smallest library with a collection rated Rs by the librarian has only two less number of titles on the list than the large library ranked E by its librarian.

The subject Microbiology (576) produced interesting information when tested by a sample of 82 titles. An E rated collection has 75 of the 82 titles and 7 Rs rated libraries reported numbers of titles in the following sequence: 23; 18; 40; 36; 39; 48; and 47.

Political Science (320) remains an enigma. Two libraries reporting Rs collections in this subject were asked to check a list of 145 titles. One library had 6 of them; the other had 17.

A somewhat surprising response resulted from the checking of 250 titles on Statistical Methods and Statistics (310 and 311). The library claiming an E collection checked only 40 titles. Three other libraries reporting Rs collections checked 55; 67; and 49 titles respectively.

Perhaps this was not a valid method for testing the strength of collections. It is, however, an indiction of the need for universally agreed upon yardsticks for evaluation. These should probably be combinations of objective and subjective standards.

Recording – Data Processing Application

Since the test of any computerized product is the conformity and consistency of the input these factors were a constant influence during the review of the questionnaires in preparation for the data processing application.

The dynamic nature of library collections and their occasional changes in emphasis resulting from changes in mission or even in selection policies, make it essential to employ support for aggregate studies such as this. From its inception, the study concept included a requirement for machine generated files and a capability for update and change as well as flexibility in producing several output reports from the same data. In these circumstances, a measure of conflict is inevitable. Efficient machine processing relies on simplified coding to represent technical information; readers using the various tables and reports prefer the freer and more familiar language of discourse and minimum of stylized abbreviation. Because of the many characters required for library name and location it was necessary to assign codes for the libraries represented in the survey. The remaining data items are processed in natural language, with only a minimum of abbreviation in the Dewey subject and in the comments.

A six character, numeric code constitutes a unique identification for each library. The first three characters represent the agency; the last three characters specify the library within an agency. With some exceptions, the sequence of agency codes is that of the United States Government Organization Manual arrangement of departments and agencies. Within agencies, an effort has been made to reflect the larger components in the sequence of individual libraries. Among the services (Army, Navy, Air Force) libraries are sequenced within three classes: Technical libraries, Medical libraries, Academic libraries.

The library list system has been prepared for use on the IBM S/360-30. It may also be run on the 360-40 under Disk Operating System (DOS). Components of the programs have been written primarily in COBOL, supplemented as needed by Assembly Language Coding (ALC) and Report Program Generator (RPG).

The computer library list system consists of a group of programs designed to create and maintain the library file and to generate the various subject listings.

The first program, "FLCGWU01," creates the library file from the initial card decks. The subject header records are then merged with this file. The sequence of this file is library within subject. Each record contains the Dewey Decimal Code, subject title, library number and zip code, comments, publication dates, publication types and a control number for the file maintenance programs.

When the file has been created, it is ready for listing in library within subject sequence. This list is generated by program "FLCGWU02."

Program "FLCGWU05" lists the file in subject within library sequence but the file must first be sorted by program "FLCGWU03."

The third list is in subject sequence within zip code and is also created by program "FLCGWU05." It, too requires the file to be sorted, this time by "FLCGWU04." In both of the previous program listings, the subject header records are ignored because they do not contain either library code or library zip code.

Also in the program roster are a proof list, ("FLCGWU07"), and a file maintenance program ("FLCGWU08"). These two programs are the basis for the update of the file. The update (always made to the initial subject sequence file), creates the update list for verification of additions, changes and deletions made to the file.

FINDINGS AND ANALYSIS

The factual information obtained in this study or associated with it, is presented in 9 Tables and 8 Appendices. A topical index is also included which serves as a guide to the subjects reported to be in the libraries surveyed. Identification, explanation and analyses of the tables and their contents follows:

PREDOMINATE LIBRARIES

As might be expected with its proliferation of information sources the libraries associated with Department of Defense predominate, the Navy, with 38 libraries, heading the list.

Department of the Navy	38 libraries
Department of the Army	32 libraries
Department of the Interior	17 libraries
Department of the Air Force	10 libraries
Department of Commerce	10 libraries
Department of Defense[8]	9 libraries
Department of Health, Education and Welfare	9 libraries
Department of Agriculture	7 libraries
Atomic Energy Commission	6 libraries
General Services Administration	4 libraries
Department of Transportation	4 libraries
Department of the Treasury	3 libraries
National Aeronautics and Space Administration	3 libraries
Tennessee Valley Authority	3 libraries
Executive Office of the President	2 libraries
Smithsonian Institution[9]	2 libraries
Other	29 libraries

A geographical breakdown reveals that the greatest concentration of Federal libraries is in the Washington, D.C. area (including Bethesda, Silver Spring, Rockville, Suitland, Greenbelt and Beltsville, Md. and Alexandria and Arlington, Va.) with 83 libraries. California is second with 13 libraries and Virginia third with 11 libraries represented. It is obvious from the table of geographic distribution which follows that the East Coast has the greatest concentration of Federal libraries with major collections.

AVAILABILITY OF MATERIAL

Availability of library material for reference or for loan is included in Table 1, right hand column. The breakdown by type of availability and the number of libraries associated with each category of availability is as follows:

RP (Reference)	-	open to the general public	87 libraries
RG	-	restricted to government employees only	48 libraries
RA	-	restricted to agency employees only	22 libraries
LP (Loan)	-	loan to general public	8 libraries
LG	-	loan to government employees, via interlibrary loan	110 libraries
LA	-	loan restricted to agency employees	18 libraries
LL	-	loan to non-government libraries	86 libraries
By appointment	-		1 library
No report	-		30 libraries

The lack of information for 29 libraries diminished the value of the table to some extent but this fact may be offset by the disclosure that 110 libraries will lend material via interlibrary loan and that 87 libraries are open to the general public, albeit for reference purposes, only. It is interesting to note that one library is available "by appointment." This one is located at the Submarine Museum, Naval Submarine Base, Groton, Connecticut.

Of the 87 libraries open to the general public for reference, 8 of them will lend to the general public. In considering availability the type of material is an important factor. The report data applies to unrestricted, non-security classified material. If the classified material, which often comprises the greater part of Defense Department libraries were included, the availability picture would be quite different.

TABLES 2, 3 AND 4 – SUMMARY OF INFORMATION RELATIVE TO RESOURCES AND MAJOR SUBJECT HOLDINGS IN U.S. FEDERAL LIBRARIES

Tables 2, 3 and 4 are similar in content but the approach in possibility of use varies. Table 2 is a library-by-library presentation in accordance with the numerical codes listed as guides in Table 1. Table 3 lists the same libraries geographically, by Zip Code. Table 4 utilizes a subject approach. An explanation and discussion of the information generated by these tables is produced on the pages which follow:

SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

In order to reveal subjects covered by the Federal libraries as well as those not covered the Third Summary Outline of the Dewey Decimal Classification with associated subject titles is recorded, in sequence, with a few omissions and additions. Omissions are dictated by the lack of subject assignments to certain areas such as 002-009; 040-049; etc., and to certain numbers as 132; 134; 136; 151; etc. Additions are necessary due to the fact that the Dewey Tables are not identical with the Third Summary. Since it was obvious that some class numbers were obtained from the Tables, these numbers have been added to the classification listing. They are 819; 921; 922; 923; 924; 925; 926; 927; and 928. Explanatory terms have been inserted, when necessary, for clarification.

There are 931 classification numbers in the Dewey Third Summary schedules. Ninety-five percent, or 888 of these are covered by the participating libraries. Forty-three of the classes are not covered. The strongest subject areas are the 900's (History) with 99 classes represented; and the 500's (Pure Sciences) with a representation of 96. The weakest is the 200 class (Religion) with only 72 subclasses recorded.

Following is a summary of the number of classes in which holdings were reported of E or Rs calibre.

Summary of the Number of Classes
In Which Holdings were Reported

Dewey Class Number	No. of Classes in Which Holdings Were Reported
000 - 099	82
100 - 199	87
200 - 299	72
300 - 399	87
400 - 499	89
500 - 599	96
600 - 699	89
700 - 799	91
800 - 899	96
900 - 999	99

Classes not reported by any library were: 107; 130-131; 135; 137-138; 154; 234-235; 238-239; 242-243; 248-255; 258-259; 263-269; 407; 448; 478; 488; 653; 663; 707; 793; 795; 807; 819; 890 and 907 – a total of 43.

The following table provides the same information in another way – that is, by showing the number of missing subclasses within the ten main Dewey classes.

Summary of Missing Classification Numbers

000 - 099	0
100 - 199	7
200 - 299	23
300 - 399	0
400 - 499	4
500 - 599	0
600 - 699	2
700 - 799	3
800 - 899	3
900 - 999	1
Total	43

Mathematics (class 510) is the subject most frequently reported, 29 locations claiming holdings. Physics (class 530) is second with 26 locations. Predominate subjects are listed below in sequence, with designation of the number of locations reporting.

Subjects with the Largest Number of Libraries Reporting

311	11
345	13
355	10
510	29
530	26
532	9
539.7	13
540	20
546	12
547	15
576	11
620	11
621	12
623	10
629.13	12
669	12

While the above figures are enlightening they cannot be construed as being indicative of an entire subject area. Mathematics (510), as mentioned previously, shows 29 locations but when all of the classes in the Mathematical Sciences (510-519) are counted the number of locations reporting jumps to 47. Such a situation also applies to Physics (530). When the entire class (530-539) is considered the count becomes 46. In order to give a more definitive analysis of the comparative status of the subject classes a summary has been prepared showing the number of libraries reporting holdings within a classification number including its decimals.

DATES

As an indication of depth of subject coverage libraries were requested to show the span of publications dates, e.g., publication dates of their earliest and latest titles. Such information was obtained from all but 15 libraries. This latter figure includes the three National libraries which were not requested to supply dates, as explained (See Appendix 5). The earliest date, 1220, was reported by the Department of Justice. The Military Academy at West Point reported 1496. The dates 1501 and 1536 were claimed by the Smithsonian Institution and the Department of the Navy Main Library, respectively.

The span of dates most frequently reported is 1800-1968 followed in turn by 1940-1968, and then 1700-1968. While the cut-off date for the report, as a whole, is 1968 it will be observed in an examination of the Tables in the column for Dates that some libraries ceased to collect in some areas prior to 1968.

It should be noted that some libraries have elected to leave the cut-off date open thus indicating continuing acquisition of titles published after 1968. Users of the computer tables should, therefore, accept 1968 as the cut-off date for reporting but not, necessarily, for actual acquisition of material.

SCOPE

Some conception of the scope of collections can be acquired by considering the information reported by each library for Dates; Scope by Type of Material (Monographs, Documents and Reports, Serials, Maps, Other); and Foreign Titles in combination with the rating of E (Exhaustive), Rs (Research) and U (Unique) for each subject class.

Nineteen libraries recorded all types of material. Three libraries recorded Documents only. Some of the 188* included in the survey assessed their collections under General only. This could imply holdings in all types of material or it could imply holdings in only one type. A weak spot, therefore, exists in the data at this point. The Instructions and Definitions (Appendix 3) stated, for General, "Assess the collection . . . as a whole. If Exhaustive in one format such as (6) Documents and Reports, but limited in another such as (5) Monographs, the overall rating at best would be Rs." It is unfortunate, for the sake of consistency and full interpretation of library holdings that a number of respondents chose to report data in column 11[10] (General) rather than in the preceding columns of the questionnaire which called for more detail.

A summary of information relative to scope follows:

Types of Material	Number of Libraries
Monographs	155
Documents and Reports	137
Serials	148
Maps	31
Other (Prints, Photographs, Microfiche, Manuscripts, etc.)	71
Foreign Language Material	102

*The following changes have occurred since processing of the original questionnaires and preparation of the computer tables: Helium Research Center; Hibernation Information Exchange; Navy Area Public Works Office, Chesapeake Technical Reference Center; and the Naval Radiological Defense Laboratory have been disestablished. The Maritime Commission has combined with the Department of Commerce and the Federal Aviation Agency has combined with the Department of Transportation. All these libraries are included in the study, however, since it was not considered practicable to delete them.

[10] In the computerized Tables nos. 2, 3 and 4, column 10 is designated General rather than 11 as in the questionnaire.

RATINGS

Although the definitions for assessing collections for completeness were considered specific they, nonetheless, tended to produce ratings in the nature of generalities due to the lack of a quantitative or qualitative yardstick. Early in the planning stage of the study the idea was contemplated of requesting a count of the number of volumes held in a given subject. Such an idea was rejected because of the amount of time it would require. The result is that there has been a tendency to judge the degree of completeness of library holdings on the basis of the ability of these holdings to satisfy the demand or need of the agency with which the library is associated. In some instances, it is known that the ratings represent a hoped for achievement in future acquisitions rather than a present day actuality. Users of the data in the tables must keep in mind that, for the most part, the ratings are generalities. The larger the library the more discretion seemed to have been used in assigning E (Exhaustive) ratings to various subjects.

Four hundred thirty eight subjects were rated E in the General column. The National Library of Medicine reported 108 E classes which is the highest number of any library. More E collections were reported for the 600's than for any other class, 616 leading with 14 different subjects, all reported by the National Library of Medicine. Ten libraries reported holdings in this class.

610	- 5 different subjects	E
611	- only one subject	E
612	- 6 different subjects	E
613	- 7 different subjects	E
614	- 11 different subjects	E
615	- 9 different subjects	E
616	- 14 different subjects	E
617	- 10 different subjects	E
618	- 4 different subjects	E
619	- 1 subject	E

Libraries reporting 10 or more E collections are:

810.000	(National Library of Medicine)	108
910.000	(Smithsonian Institution)	95
675.000	(National Agricultural Library)	58
063.000	(Library of Congress)	30
107.000	(Department of State Library)	12
874.035	(Department of Transportation)	11
231.000	(Department of the Army Library)	10
732.000	(Merchant Marine Academy Library)	10

FOREIGN LANGUAGE MATERIAL

An examination of the Tables reveals that 111 locations have foreign language material in their collections. There is little apparent correlation between subjects rated E (Exhaustive) and the subjects for which material in foreign languages is reported. An analysis of the classes in which foreign language material is reported shows the 500's and 600's as outstanding in this respect with 60 and 62 libraries, respectively represented. Library codes beneath each class number indicate the libraries reporting foreign language material in each class.

Only four libraries, Library of Congress (063.000), Smithsonian Institution (910.000), Army Library, Pentagon (231.000) and Defense Language School, Monterey (180.110) reported holdings in the 400's (Language). Only Dewey Classes 407, 448, 478, and 488 are omitted entirely although some minor languages and dialects are lacking.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Although there are problem areas in the report it, nonetheless, will have a number of uses, as was intended. It will:

1. Serve, if considered desirable, as the basis for establishing a coordinated network of Federal libraries.
2. Constitute a tool, not previously available, covering the significant holdings of Federal libraries throughout the country on a coordinated and comparative basis.
3. Indicate gaps or weaknesses in the total information resources.
4. Indicate the degree of availability to scholars and the public of the collection of each library.
5. Indicate library resource capability for any agency or agencies which may consider assuming Government-wide information responsibility in a specific subject area.
6. Make possible the formulation of recommendations for a more efficient and logical coordination of acquisition and collection development policies.

In considering the findings certain concessions must be made, otherwise the information may fail to fully satisfy the expectations of users for several reasons:

1. Some of the data may no longer be meaningful. No collections remain static and changes are inevitable. The Department of Commerce Library (Library Code 732.000) as an example, having reported a retrospective collection, may, in accordance with a Secretary's Memorandum[11] become, henceforth, primarily, a current collection only. Consideration is being given to discarding all books published prior to 1960 and all periodicals published prior to 1965, unless their retention can be justified.

An additional example of change concerns the Navy Radiological Defense Laboratory (Library Code 287.415) which was scheduled for disestablishment in December 1969[12]. Furthermore the Maritime Administration collection has become a part of the Department of Commerce Library. Another change involves the library of the Federal Aviation Agency, now known as the Transportation Department Library.

Additional examples of change since work on the Resources Study began involve the Navy Radiological Defense Laboratory Library (Library Code 287.415); the Hibernation Information Exchange (Library Code 287.355); the Navy Area Public Works Office, Chesapeake Technical Reference Center (Library Code 287.165); and the Helium Research Center (Library Code 594.100) all of which have been disestablished.

Since the computer tables were prepared prior to the change in status of these libraries the information which the librarians supplied has not been deleted.

2. Data supplied by some libraries is more complete than for others; therefore any comparisons, library-by-library are inconclusive. Although the questionnaire sought to obtain similar information, interpretation of what was wanted varies. It is known, for instance, that many libraries maintain archival files of material issued by the Department or Agency with which they are associated. Only a few, however, mentioned such material. There are, undoubtedly, other non-documented data which, if supplied would have provided a more complete description of library holdings.

3. Differentiation between Unique and Special collections is not clear cut. Twenty-three of the Unique are also designated Special collections.

4. The indicated coverage of subject areas is not entirely reliable because general terms such as Aeronautics (629.13) were reported by some and more specific terms describing various aspects of Aeronautics were reported by others. It is probably not impractical to assume that collections classified only as Aeronautics may also include more specific aspects such as Aerodynamics (629.1323) and Propulsion principles (629.13238) but this information is missing from the reported data.

[12] Science 164: 1148-1149, June 6, 1969.

In the case of the Library of Congress it must be pointed out that, even though some subjects are shown at the decimal point, the reporting of the broader class at the full Dewey number indicates full coverage for the whole class, including decimals. Such a situation applies, also, to the National Library of Medicine.

5. The rating of collections and the assessment of the degree of completeness for each form of material within a subject has, undoubtedly, been based on personal rather than comparative judgment or the ability of individual collections to serve the needs of users. This is due to the lack of a technique for applying suitable standards for judging collections. Definitions of comprehensive and research collections such as those utilized in the study are insufficient in substance to enable librarians to report the status of collections in a reliable and adequate manner. Definitions are subject to many different interpretations. Indications are that there is need for developing a series of standards to be used as yardsticks for measuring, in depth, the status of collections so that more meaningful comparisons will result.

TABLE 1 – IDENTIFYING CODE NUMBERS FOR LIBRARIES INCLUDED IN THE ANALYSIS, AND INDICATION OF AVAILABILITY OF COLLECTIONS

In order to identify the various libraries for which information is given it is necessary to refer to, and become familiar with, the Code numbers assigned to them. These Code numbers are utilized in the computerized tables instead of the names of libraries. The Code numbers are arranged numerically in Table 1 followed by the name and address of the agency with which each library is associated. An explanation of the pattern followed in the assignment of numbers is given in the Recording – Data Processing Application portion of the report, p. 9-10.

An alphabetical listing of the libraries and addresses included in this Table may be found in Table 9.

TABLE 2 – MAJOR RESOURCES IN FEDERAL LIBRARIES LISTED BY LIBRARY

Table 2 combines, in sequence, library by library, the information supplied by the returned questionnaires. The first library is 061.000 or the General Accounting Office as signified by referring to the Code in Table 1. Seven subject entries by class number are recorded for this library followed by the next grouping, that for 063.000 or the Library of Congress, and so on for 188 different libraries identified by Codes 061.000 - 963.000.

In Table 2 as well as in Tables 3 and 4 the information provided regarding resources can be identified by the designations at the top of each sheet, some of the designations being in abbreviated form.

TABLE 3 – MAJOR RESOURCES IN FEDERAL LIBRARIES LISTED GEOGRAPHICALLY BY ZIP CODE

Table 3 provides a geographic listing of libraries by means of Zip Code. It is merely a rearrangement of Table 2. Instead of an arrangement by libraries in sequence by Code Number this listing runs from Zip Code 01730 which is assigned to Research Library AFL 2297 at Hanscom Air Force Field, Bedford, Massachusetts to Zip Code 99901 which is the Technological Laboratory, Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, Ketchikan, Alaska. One library has no Zip Code – the Canal Zone Library Museum in Balboa Heights, Canal Zone. (Library Code no. 905.000)

The same information can be obtained from either Table. The chief use of Table 3, however, will be to determine the geographic location of collections as a whole. The geographic distribution of specific subjects can more readily be determined through use of Table 4. The accompanying key to geographical listing by Zip Code will serve as a guide.

A count of the various states appearing in the Zip Code list reveals that by far the largest number of libraries included in the study are located in the Washington, D.C. area. They number a total of 88. The state of California is second with 13 libraries and Virginia is third, with 9 libraries represented. It becomes obvious, in consulting the accompanying analytical presentation that the East Coast of the United States has the greatest concentration of Federal libraries with major subject collections.

TABLE 4 – MAJOR RESOURCES IN FEDERAL LIBRARIES LISTED BY SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

Table 4 is the most useful single table for it is a composite of the others. From it can be found the answer to questions concerning subject coverage – duplication, strength, weakness and distribution; depth of coverage; span of dates of publication; the rating of the research holdings of libraries as a whole or of its components; types of material included; foreign title representation; bibliographic aids; and special collections.

The only information not obtainable from this table concerns availability of material for reference or loan. For this information it is necessary to consult Table 1.

When consulting Table 4 two facts should be kept in mind: (1) the inclusion of 1968 as the last date of coverage does not necessarily imply discontinuance of acquisition of material published in later years. Inclusion results from a weakness in the questionnaire which, because of the date of its issuance in 1968 and its request "to show coverage span of publication dates, i.e. publication dates of earliest and latest titles" inadvertently suggested use of 1968; (2) when a library code number appears under the first number of a Dewey classification division, e.g. 610 (Medical sciences) it may be assumed that all sub-divisions of this subject are also covered although not specifically indicated. The reason that some libraries are designated under the sub-divisions e.g. 810.7; 810.7368 etc. and not under the main or first number is due to their specialization in certain branches of the medical sciences and not in the field as a whole.

When referring to subjects included for the Library of Congress (Library Code 063.000) users of the Table should realize that, even though some subjects are shown at the decimal point, the reporting of the broader class at the full Dewey number indicates full coverage for the whole class, including decimals.

TABLE 5 – BIBLIOGRAPHIC AIDS AND CARD INDEXES MAINTAINED

Column 12 on the questionnaire was utilized for reporting on (1) indexing or abstracting services generated within the library; (2) bibliographies issued at regular intervals; or, (3) card files of subject bibliographies maintained. Those reported appear in Table 5. Many more are undoubtedly available.

Attention is directed, in particular, to the recurring bibliographies in specialized biomedical fields produced by the National Library of Medicine through its computer-based MEDLARS (Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System). These periodically produced lists are printed and distributed by nonprofit professional organizations and other government agencies with whom the Library cooperates. The titles are Bibliography on Medical Education; Cerebrovascular Bibliography; Fibrinolysis, Thrombolysis and Blood Clotting; Index of Rheumatology; Index of Dental Literature; International Nursing Index; Artificial Kidney Bibliography; Endocrinology Index; Bibliography of Surgery of the Hand; Anesthesiology Bibliography; Current Bibliography of Epidemiology; Neurosurgical Biblio-Index; Cranio-Facial-Cleft Palate Bibliography; and Index of Investigative Dermatopathology and Dermatology. Since compilation of the table, the Pesticides Documentation Bulletin (Library Code 675.000) has been discontinued.

TABLE 6 – SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

One of the purposes of this study was to bring to light the existence of unusual, significant collections. They are considered significant because of subject, format, donor, or collector and frequently are identified by the donor or collector's name. A considerable number of such collections were noted in the Remarks column (13) now called Comments column and were designated "Special" collections. They are listed by title, with associated Library Code number, in Table 6.

Although not definitely specified it is assumed that material in these collections is not usually available for loan, but, instead, is accessible for on-the-spot reference use only.

TABLE 7 – UNIQUE COLLECTIONS

A unique collection, according to the prescribed definition (Appendix 3) is one without like or equal. It may be distinguished for excellence; it may contain rare or only known copies; it need not necessarily be distinguished by size. Those responding to the questionnaire were asked to call attention to such collections by the designation U (Unique) in the Scope by Type of Material Section. One hundred sixteen were so designated.

These unique collections, arranged by classification number, and with descriptive titles included, are listed in Table 7. Library Codes are also included for identification purposes.

Following is an analysis of the broad classes covered:

TABLE 8 – LOCATIONS TO WHICH QUESTIONNAIRES WERE SENT

The List of Libraries, Offices and Locations to Which Questionnaires were Sent is to be found in Table 8. The list is arranged in accordance with the United States Government Organization Manual, 1968-69, that is, in accordance with the five broad divisions of the government - Legislative Branch, Judicial Branch, Executive Branch, Independent Agencies, and Selected Boards, Committees and Commissions. Within each of these five divisions are grouped, alphabetically, insofar as possible, the Departments or Offices, followed by the main organizational units and their libraries.

The names of libraries and the addresses are, in general, those originally obtained from the Federal Library Committee and a few other sources referred to in the Introduction. In some instances slight revisions have been made for the sake of conformity in listing, or because of changes injected during the study.

The list should, in no sense, be considered a complete listing of United States Government Libraries.

FEDERAL LIBRARY COMMITTEE
LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20540

November 12, 1968.

Dear Colleague:

The Federal Library Committee's Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources has been studying the problem of evaluating Federal library collections on a comparable basis in order to provide the basic information upon which library cooperation and library network concepts must be based. A project has been developed and funds provided by the U. S. Office of Education to the Biological Sciences Communication Project of the George Washington University for undertaking a study of resources and major subject holdings available in U.S. Federal libraries maintaining extensive or unique collections of research materials. The term "major subject holdings" is interpreted as applying only to those subject areas in which a library has an exhaustive or comprehensive collection, or a research collection (see attached definitions and instructions). The term "unique" applies to an unusual or one-of-a-kind collection.

In carrying out their missions, the Federal agencies have established and maintained libraries to support their administrative and research programs. These libraries, collectively, constitute one of the great intellectual resources of our Nation. It is the considered opinion of the Task Force which has directed its attention to possible plans and methods which might provide the basis for recommending a correlated effort for the acquisition and retention of research materials adequate for the Government's needs and national responsibilities, that an analysis of Federal library collections is a desirable first step in establishing a Government-wide program for meaningful correlation of resources. Your cooperation in this endeavor is, consequently, of prime importance.

During a review of the completed questionnaires, those reporting "E" and "Rs" collections will be of particular interest. The libraries thus represented will probably again be approached for the purpose of obtaining further information relative to acquisition policy, retention policy, and availability of material. There will thus be two levels of reporting. There will be a directory-type listing for all libraries responding to the questionnaire which will indicate subject holdings and degree of availability.

PERMANENT MEMBERSHIP—Library of Congress (Librarian of Congress, Chairman), National Agricultural Library, National Library of Medicine, Department of State, Department of the Treasury, Department of Defense, Department of Justice, Post Office Department, Department of the Interior, Department of Commerce, Department of Labor, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Department of Transportation.

ROTATING MEMBERSHIP, 1967–69—Civil Service Commission, General Services Administration, National Science Foundation, Smithsonian Institution, United States Information Agency, Veterans Administration.

OBSERVERS—Bureau of the Budget and Office of Science and Technology of the Executive Office of the President, Library of Congress, Division of Library Services of the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

It is expected that results of the completed study will be published and distributed. Certain parts to be included in the final publication will be of value to you, namely, (1) a list, in alphabetical order, of the subjects reported by and available in the libraries studied; and (2) a list, in hierarchial arrangement such as appears on the questionnaire, identifying the libraries having holdings in the subjects on the list, as well as indicating the depth of their holdings (e.g., exhaustive or research collections); types of materials; the availability to researchers; and bibliographic tools, i.e., indexes, abstracts and bibliographies issued by the libraries, at regular or stated intervals, in order to facilitate their use.

The enclosed questionnaire may appear formidable at first glance, but no library will need to answer more than a small portion of it. These portions, when put together, will provide the most detailed profile of Federal library resources yet developed. Please keep in mind that although the subjects listed cover ten classes of knowledge, in accordance with the Dewey Decimal Classification, Third Summary, you need be concerned with relating to this classification outline only the major subjects in your library which meet the requirements of the definitions for "E" and "Rs" collections. Thus, the task of reporting is somewhat simplified. Access to the Dewey Decimal Classification Scheme will also be helpful.

If your library is not classified by Dewey, the chief problem which may confront you will be inherent in the process of translating or relating your subject terms to those designated in column 3 (Subjects) of the questionnaire. Inasmuch as it is not feasible to include in the questionnaire more than the broad subjects designated by the Third Summary of Dewey, please do the best that you can in indicating your major subject collections opposite the subjects on the questionnaire which most nearly describes them. If necessary, explain further in the "Remarks" column or add additional notes. If possible, add the exact Dewey classification number as used in your library or as found in the Dewey Relative Index.

Dr. Robert B. Stegmaier, Jr., Acting Director of Technical Information, ODDR&E, has reviewed the questionnaire and approved it for circulation to DOD libraries.

Please read the instructions and definitions with care. If there are questions, feel free to request further information. All questionnaires must be returned by December 15, 1968, to Miss Mildred Benton, Biological Sciences Communication Project, 2000 P Street, N.W., Suite 700, Washington, D. C. 20036.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Howard

A STUDY OF RESOURCES AND MAJOR SUBJECT HOLDINGS AVAILABLE IN U.S. FEDERAL LIBRARIES MAINTAINING EXTENSIVE OR UNIQUE COLLECTIONS OF RESEARCH MATERIALS

INSTRUCTIONS AND DEFINITIONS

Please fill in all spaces on the questionnaire whenever applicable. If your collection is neither Exhaustive nor Research in any subject please provide a statement to that effect. Item numbers below are keyed to the numbered spaces on the reporting form:

1. Name of Library. Give name in full with agency affiliation.

2. Location. Give complete mailing address.

3. Subjects. A major objective of this survey is the identification of major, as well as distinctive library resources held in the many different collections of federal libraries throughout the country. Utilize the no. 3 column for designating such resources by subject. To standardize replies the Dewey Decimal Classification Third Summary has been designated as a basis for reporting and a copy of the Third Summary is enclosed for your convenience.

   As some libraries use classification schemes which cannot be directly converted to Dewey Decimal numbers, and, as some will wish to report significant collections on subjects more precise than those listed in the Dewey Third Summary, access to the Relative Index included in bound volumes of Dewey will be helpful.

   Examples of how the Relative Index can be used are as follows: (1) If, for instance, you wish to indicate strong holdings in Underwater acoustics, you will not find this term in the Third Summary listing; however, by consulting the Relative Index you will find, Underwater, acoustics physics - 534. Add 534 to the class number column of the questionnaire, and add Underwater acoustics opposite it in the subject column. (2) If your library has sufficient material on duck hunting to warrant inclusion you can do so by designating the class number 799.24 which is to be found in the Relative Index under Ducks, hunting, sports. (3) If you wish to cite material on customs of Holy Week which, also, does not appear in the Third Summary outline, the number for it, e.g. 394.26 may be found in the Relative Index under Holy Week, customs.

   If access to the Relative Index is not feasible, or, if for some reason it is not possible to designate classification numbers, please include subjects only, but use as precise terminology as you can.

   Report only those subjects in which your library has a collection which, in total, or, in one or more types of material, meets one of the three definitions given on page 2 under Scope by Type of Material.

4. Dates. As an indication of depth of subject coverage show span of publication dates, i.e., publication dates of earliest and latest titles such as 1890-1968. If, however, the dates are scattered, or if there are many titles with early or late dates explain in Remarks space.

Scope by Type of Material. In addition to rating the collection in General (12) enter here an assessment of the degree of completeness for each form of material within a subject, and in addition any unique material. The following definitions distinguish the three levels to be reported using the symbols

E - Exhaustive
Rs- Research
U - Unique

(E) An exhaustive or comprehensive collection, E, is one that deals with a subject for which the library discharges the responsibility of practical completeness and therefore endeavors to have everything written on the subject in all editions and languages but not necessarily in all translations or variant issues of the same edition. From this may also be excluded such minor items as promotional literature, reprints, or notices.

(Rs) A research collection, Rs, is one that deals with a subject in which extensive investigation and research can be pursued. The collection is designed to serve the needs and support the resources of other Government agencies as well as the pursuit of advanced research by academic scholars and others. It includes all the basic reference tools and all important editions (as well as the latest and best) regardless of language. It also includes an ample selection of less important current works such as distinguish a research from a reference collection. Retrospective material is limited to works representing the most important editions, authors, or landmarks in the history of the subject.

(U) A unique collection, U, is one without like or equal. It may be distinguished for excellence; it may contain rare or only known copies; it need not necessarily be distinguished by size. Examples are: a collection of Civilian Conservation Corps newspapers; a collection of photographs of Indians; the polar library of the late General A. W. Greely; miniature books.

These three symbols are to be used for reporting on each type of material within a Dewey Decimal subject.

5. Monographs. Any printed, typewritten, mimeographed or processed work, bound or unbound, that has been cataloged and/or fully prepared for use. Exclude bound periodical volumes and technical or documents reports.

6. Documents. An official or formal record (technical report) giving details and results of specific investigation of scientific or technical problem. Include non-security classified items only.

7. Serials. A publication issued in successive parts, usually at regular intervals and, as a rule, intended to be continued indefinitely. Serials include periodicals, newspapers, annuals (reports, yearbooks) proceedings, transactions of societies and may include monographic and publishers' series. Practically speaking, a serial is a publication which lends itself to listing invisible indexes or other posting records.

8. Maps. Anything suggestive of a map, including geodetic and geological charts, soil maps.

9. Other. Non-conventional material such as prints, photographs, microfilm, microfiche, microcards, and manuscripts. Specify type in Remarks space (13).

10. Foreign Titles. Indicate by yes or no. If yes designate in the Remarks space which languages are included.

11. General. Assess the collection in this subject as a whole. If Exhaustive in one format such as (6) Documents and Reports, but limited in another such as (5) Monographs, the overall rating at best would be Rs.

12. Bibliographical Aids and Card Indexes Maintained. If indexing or abstracting services or bibliographies are issued at regular intervals or if card files of subject bibliographies are maintained by your library, indicate by a check mark and give titles and further information in the Remarks space.

13. Remarks. Utilize this space as requested in items 9 and 10, and also for explanation or description of information previously recorded as well as that not previously mentioned. For example, mention of picture collections, prints, microform, audio visual or vertical file material of significance will be of interest.

14-15. Availability of collection. Indicate the degree of access to the collection by checking one or more of the following designations: 14 - reading or reference within the library; 15 - use of the collection through loan.

RP - (Reference)	- open to the general public.
RG -	- restricted to government employees only.
RA -	- restricted to agency employees only.
LP - (Loan)	- loan to general public.
LG -	- loan to government employees, via interlibrary loan.
LA -	- loan restricted to agency employees.
LL -	- loan to non-government libraries.

Survey of Federal Libraries-Dates

In line with the recommendation made by the FLC Task Force on Acquisition of Library Materials and Correlation of Federal Library Resources at the meeting of February 12, 1969, that information as to inclusive dates of materials held would not be sought or used for LC, NAL, and NLM, I am forwarding a draft statement explaining why this information is not needed for these libraries.

The statement, prepared by the Working Group on Acquisitions of the U.S. National Libraries Task Force on Automation and Other Cooperative Services, reads as follows:

> No dates, showing span of publication dates, are included in the surveys of the collections of the Library of Congress, the National Agricultural Library, and the National Library of Medicine. It was felt that this information would not supply any useful indication of depth of subject coverage for collections as well established and comprehensive as the collections of these three national libraries.

January 15, 1969

Dear Colleague:

In a letter of November 12, 1968, signed by Paul Howard, Executive Secretary of the Federal Library Committee, plans were outlined for a study of resources and major subject holdings available in Federal libraries.

Accompanying this letter was a questionnaire which was to have been completed and returned by December 15. A follow-up letter was sent to you on December 16. Although no questionnaire has yet, been received from your library, it is our hope that you intend to forward it. The importance of a reply from every Federal library cannot be overemphasized. Even though no part of your collection meets the specification of Exhaustive (E), Research (RS) or Unique (U), as defined in the Instructions and Definitions, please return the questionnaire as soon as possible, with an indication that it is not applicable, if such is the case, or with the desired information supplied.

Thank you in advance for whatever contribution you can make to the study.

Sincerely,

Mildred Benton

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
Biological Sciences Communication Project

The time and effort spent on the questionnaire regarding Federal library resources is greatly appreciated. An adjusted version of the copy returned to us is sent to you, herewith, for review.

Adjustments, such as appear on your questionnaire, have been necessary for the majority of those received, in order that information supplied will conform to a standard Dewey classification and language pattern suitable for coding and tabulation. The ratings of E and Rs have also been eliminated, in some instances, since, in comparison with other collections of similar subject content, the ratings do not meet the requirements of the definitions and instructions.

In order to simplify procedures and to save time, we will consider the revision of your questionnaire approved unless advice to the contrary is received by March 15.

Thank you, in advance, for your assistance. Response to our need for information has been most gratifying. The final report, listing Federal libraries and their primary subject collections will be more complete than originally anticipated thanks to the cooperation of many who will ultimately make use of it.

Sincerely,

Mildred Benton

Appendix 8

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
Biological Sciences Communication Project

As your library did not respond to the questionnaire regarding Federal Library resources (see letter of November 12, 1968 signed by Paul Howard, Executive Secretary, Federal Library Committee) we have taken the liberty of preparing a questionnaire in this office, where interpretation and tabulation of 400 Federal libraries is in progress.

The final directory, topical index and report will be much more useful if all Federal libraries are included. The information on your library, which we have supplied, has been obtained from various published sources. Please review the enclosure, and complete the missing details, particularly approximate dates.

If we do not hear from you to the contrary, by March 15, we will assume that the questionnaire has your approval and we will use the information, minus dates and other relevant facts, although we would certainly prefer to have them.

Thank you, in advance, for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Mildred Benton

SUBJECT INDEX

The subject index to the resources reported by libraries included in the study is arranged alphabetically by topic designation followed by the associated Dewey Decimal Classification number. Such a device seemed appropriate in order to assure conformance in terminology as well as to relate associated terms indicated on many returned questionnaires. Use of this subject index in conjunction with Table 3 will enable those interested to determine which libraries hold the subjects in question. Matching of Dewey classification numbers in the subject index with those in the Tables is a necessary action in this endeavor.
